€200 million profit Cuts to workers' wages

Tesco, one of Ireland's most profitable retailers, is cutting pay and conditions of employment for their longest serving members of staff. Without any agreement, the company is forcing:

- 15-35% pay cuts
- The slashing of overtime
- Cuts to Sunday and unsociable hours premiums from double pay to time and a half
- A reduction in workers' annual bonus
- Changes to rosters

Tesco tearing up agreements with their workers

Mandate Trade Union is calling on Tesco to abide by all collective agreements with their workers' representatives and immediately cease all attacks on pay and conditions of employment.

If Tesco get away with these drastic changes to conditions of employment for workers with more than 20 years service, what further attacks can their workers expect next?

Tesco is also refusing to attend the Labour Court for a hearing on the issues in dispute.

If you tolerate this... who'll be next?
